MURDERED FOR MONEY

Mrs. Max Boschinsky and Her Little Son Slain for $150.

Williamsburg Police Make Several Arrests on Suspicion.

Only Faint Clues by Which to Fix the Assassin's Identity.

Capt. Ennis, of the Stagg street police station, Williamsburg, has in his custody two men whom he arrested at 5.30 o'clock this morning on suspicion of complicity in a horrible double murder at 35 Moore street.

The victims were Mrs. Frederika Boschinsky, the pretty young wife of Max Boschinsky, who also calls himself "Black," and her little four-and-a-half-year-old boy Isaac. They occupied the three front rooms on the top floor of the building, which is a three-story brick structure. With them boarded Israel, Boschinsky's brother.

The assassin's work had been most brutally done, and the back of the unfortunate woman's head had been smashed to jelly. The weapon used was evidently the same as that which killed the little boy.

Dr. Crooner was unable to discover whether or not the murderer had another motive than robbery for his deed, but he did discover that the crime was all the more terrible from the fact that the woman was soon to become a mother.

So the police have been unable to find the weapon used by the assassin. From the shape of the cuts, some of which left impressions the size and shape of the semi-circumference of a quarter of a dollar, they could have been inflicted with a hammer, hatchet or axehead, club, rolling-pin or even the leg of a stool.

Nothing in the rooms where the tragedy was committed shows signs of having been used for such a purpose, but the police are inclined to the belief that a hammer or axehead, club, rolling-pin or even the leg of a stool.

Crowds of morbidly curious people hovered about the scene of the tragedy, and the stable where Mrs. Boschinsky's body lay this morning, and the police had to use force to keep them at a distance.

The whole neighborhood, too, was excited, possibly because of the wholesale arrests made by the police last night. Altogether fourteen neighbors were gathered in by the door, but all were released this morning when Feldman and Lemberg were arrested.

Samuel Cohen, a dressmaker, lives and has his shop on the second floor, under Boschinsky's apartments. None of his family heard any unusual noise in the rooms over them yesterday.

John and Jack keeps boarders, and one of them, Leopold Seizman, who was away from Cohen's room from noon until 8 o'clock last night, was arrested. He proved an alibi and was discharged. Cohen, his brothers, Max and Simon, and Joseph Heifand, the delicatessen man, were also arrested, but later were released.

Lemberg, one of the men still under arrest, insists that he was at work in Water street, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, but cannot remember the number of the house in which he was employed.

It is rumored that he was in love with Mrs. Boschinsky and had asked to be taken back into the family, but that Mrs. Boschinsky had objected. The police give little credence to the love story.

Early last night the police found that the door in Boschinsky's apartments leading into those occupied by Feldman was open. This may prove an additional clue, as it shows the way the murderer escaped, as it shows the way the murderer escaped, as it shows the way the murderer escaped.

A little way and Boschinsky is at a match to see what obstructed it.

Then a terrible sight met his eyes. The obstruction to the door was the body of his little boy Isaac, whose head was bathed in blood. This little fellow was still alive, but apparently dying.

Near-by was another form in a great pool of blood. It was that of his wife, cold in death.

The room was in great disorder and gave evidence of having been the scene of a terrible struggle.

Boschinsky screamed "murder" at the top of his voice and dashed down the stairs. The tenants heard him and took up the cry, and soon the entire neighborhood was aroused and crowds flocked to the scene.

Policemen Welsh took in the situation, and, summoning aid from the Stagg street station, began an investigation in company with Boschinsky.

The first thing the latter did was to rush to an old bureau in a corner of the room. It had been completely ransacked, and $150, the hard-earned savings from Boschinsky's meagre salary of $8 a week, was missing.

The shawl under which his wife had concealed it hung at one of the windows. Here then was the motive.

The police sent little Isaac to St. Catherine's hospital, where House surgeon Leback did everything to save his life. But it was useless.

Four terrible cuts, made with a blunt, round instrument welded by a strong arm, had fractured the little fellow's skull in as many places.

There was also another cut on the head, but this was superficial. At 2.30 this morning the poor boy died, only once regaining consciousness, when he moaned and gasped faintly, "Oh! Papa!"

The hopes of the police sank with his death, for they reasoned that he might know who the murderer was.

It was discovered, however, that the boy had been eating apples, and part of one he had in his little fist when found.

Then Mrs. Annie Braun, who keeps a little fruit store at 31 Moore street, remembered that between 3 and 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon little Isaac bought an apple of her.

He came back soon after with another penny and demanded a bigger apple, and said something about a nice man being at his house.

Speaker Crisp Names His Committee on Rules To-Day.

More Bills and Fair Memorials Presented to the Senate.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—In his opening prayer in the house to-day the chaplain invoked the divine protection on the members against the assaults of the insidious disease now prevailing the land.

The speaker announced the appointment of the Committee on Rules as follows:

The Speaker (Chairman), Messrs. McMillin, Catherines, Reed and Burrows.

Mr. Gates of Alabama, offered a resolution providing for the appointment of a standing committee on order of business, to consist of fifteen members, of which the speaker shall be ex officio chairman, which shall have jurisdiction of the order in which business shall be considered, having due regard to fairness and equity among the several committees.

Referred to the committee on rules.

Mr. Bartles of Nevada, who has been absent on account of illness, appeared at the bar of the house and took the oath of office.

Mr. Taylor of Tennessee, rising, said that it was his regret to announce the death of his friend and colleague, Leonard C. Hunt, who died suddenly from accidental poisoning at his home in Knoxville in May last.

The House, as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased, adjourned till Saturday.

The appointment of the House Committee on Rules, which was made yesterday, was a return to the former policy of appointing members of this committee without reference to their official assignments.

This was the policy under which speakers Randall, Hendricks and others were selected.

Mr. McMillin's selection as a member of the new Rules Committee is ascribed to his parliamentary ability, his effectiveness as a debater, and his reputation for personal integrity.

Projected Government Benefits to English Farm Workers.

Peaceful Solution of Franco-Bulgarian Difficulties Expected.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

LONDON, Dec. 16.—A delegation of agricultural laborers waited upon the right hon. Joseph Chamberlain, M. P. for West Birmingham, in connection with the schemes proposed for bettering their condition.

Mr. Chamberlain assured the delegation that the Government was more at liberty and more willing than was the opposition to adopt legislation looking to an amelioration of the condition of agricultural laborers throughout the country by the establishment of county councils.

Mr. Chamberlain also said that the dwellings of the laborers would be improved, adding that the Government proposed at the coming session to Parliament to authorize legislation for that purpose. It also had ready to introduce a measure to allow laborers to acquire small holdings and to assist them in procuring the land. The Government, Mr. Chamberlain further declared, also had under consideration other measures of special interest to agricultural laborers.
